Sleep complaints are common in people with Parkinson’s disease. These may include insomnia, fragmented sleep, excessive daytime sleepiness, restless leg syndrome, sleep apnea and dream enactment. Similar sleep disorders are also common in the general population and are routinely evaluated by primary care physicians, neurologists, or sleep specialists. Parkinson’s disease medications can affect sleep and contribute to possible side effects of sedation, insomnia or even sleep attacks.

Good sleep is vital for brain health and overall well-being. If sleep is a problem for you it is important to address any modifiable factors affecting your sleep. First, review all medications with your doctor to see if any may be affecting your sleep. This includes over the counter medications or supplements since they may have side effects or interactions with prescribed medications.

Second, work on sleep hygiene. Sleep hygiene is a variety of different practices that are necessary to have normal, good quality sleep at night and full daytime alertness. A few tips for improving sleep hygiene include:

- Establish a regular sleep schedule with similar wake and sleep patterns seven days a week and block off enough time to sleep
- Avoiding stimulants and large meals right before bed
- Minimize drinking beverages (especially alcohol and caffeine) before bedtime to help avoid frequent nighttime urination
- Make sure sleep space is relaxing and conducive to sleep
- Exercise early in the day and get out into the sunshine for light exposure
- Avoid vigorous exercise right before bed
- Use satin sheets or pajamas to help with turning in bed

Third, you should review your sleep patterns and particular reasons for sleep difficulty (frequent nighttime urination, insomnia etc.) with your doctor for an individualized plan. A sleep specialist referral or sleep study may be necessary to evaluate your sleep complaints in order to determine specific treatments.
The Parkinson Path is published four times a year by the Parkinson Association of Northern California.

The Computer Made Me Do It
by Dorothy Ross, Davis Support Group

My grandkids kept asking that I put my writing pieces in some kind of order for them, so I decided to assemble a collection to give as Christmas gifts. I pictured three-ring binders divided chronologically or by subject matter. Seemed simple enough.

And it was simple but for the fact that I had written more than 200 pieces over the past twenty years since leaving my job at UC Davis. Determined to cull the files until I had distilled fifty of my favorite stories, I spent hours editing, cutting and pasting—trying to make each anecdote as interesting as possible.

When I was finished with the first draft, the manuscript totaled more than 200 pages. A writing coach friend convinced me to self-publish the memoir in paperback and Kindle for my many relatives and friends to purchase. She said Amazon made it easy and inexpensive. She was right about the cost—nothing out of pocket, but I found the assembly process daunting. The same guru recommended a man who could design the cover and format the text. His prices were quite reasonable.

All I had left to do was acquire an ISBN number — the bar graph that goes on the back of every book. I fussed with that for days until my daughter arranged for a reassuring phone call with her friend who is a published author. Done and done.

Amazon’s self-publishing program detected two misspelled words in my 200-page book—both missing letters. I had two choices: I could spend a lot of time finding and fixing the errors, or else I could instruct the online editor to ignore the mistakes and go to print with my memoir.

The absent letters were the result of Parkinson’s progression in my hands. My dominant right hand has become downright overbearing, striking the keys too hard and lingering so long that I end up with strings of kkkkk and j jjj j. And the pinky on the weaker left hand often fails to complete the down stroke, resulting in those pesky misspellings due to missing letters.

When I sat down and skimmed the text, I was appalled at the number of cut-and-paste errors I found. My feeble fingers often dropped text while I was still dragging. All these mistakes are especially embarrassing given the theme of my book.

I gave Amazon permission to go ahead with the listing of my book without delaying to make it perfect. After twelve years of dealing with Parkinson’s I know I’ll never again be anything close to perfect.

Dorothy’s memoir, NOT Just a Secretary, is now available online through Amazon books.

Caregiver Resource Centers

If you are one of the estimated 2 out of 5 adults who are caregivers for a loved one with chronic and disabling conditions, where do you turn when you need resources and support? One place is your regional Caregiver Resource Center (CRC).

Services available through a CRC are free or low cost and include:

- specialized information on caregiving issues and community resources
- consultation with trained staff to assess and plan courses of action
- short-term counseling to offer support with the caregiving role
- financial assistance with respite care
- monthly support group meetings
- workshops on pertinent topics
- legal and financial consultation

The 11 Caregiver Resource Centers located throughout California are funded by the Department of Health Care Services, Area 4 Agency on Aging, grants, and private donations. Each center serves specific geographic locations. For example, Del Oro CRC (www.deloro.org) is located in Citrus Heights and serves the counties of Alpine, Amador, Calaveras, Colusa, El Dorado, Nevada, Placer, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Sierra, Sutter, Yolo, and Yuba Counties. Passages CRC (www.passagescenter.org) is located in Chico and serves Butte, Glenn, Lassen, Modoc, Plumas, Shasta, Siskiyou, Tehama, and Trinity Counties. Redwood CRC (www.redwoodcrc.org) is located in Santa Rosa and serves Del Norte, Humboldt, Lake, Mendocino, Napa, Solano, and Sonoma Counties.

Resources are seldom adequate to meet all the needs. In an effort to augment the respite care, PANC has partnered with the above-mentioned resource centers and provides additional respite funding for care-partners of people with Parkinson’s. Contact the appropriate CRC and inquire about respite resources. Assisting a person with Parkinson disease is a 24/7 commitment and can take a toll on the physical and emotional health of a care-partner. Please consider supporting PANC’s Caregiver Respite Program. Spread the word to your friends and family and ask them to donate at www.PANCtoday.org.

Let us help you start one!

PANC Advisory Support Group Facilitators and attendees should be aware that not all medications, treatments or theories about Parkinson’s disease are ‘right’ for every person.
If presentations or discussions within your Group raise issues in your mind regarding your personal condition or treatment plan, you are advised to bring those questions to your treating physician for further exploration prior to making any changes in your medications or routines.
The 4th Annual ‘COP Walk’ (Robert G. Smith Walk to Cancel Out Parkinson’s) is scheduled for April 4, 2020. It will be held at the Maidu Regional Park, 1550 Maidu Drive, Roseville, CA. Registration and the resource fair begin at 9 a.m. with the walk beginning at 10:30 a.m. Lunch follows at 11:30 a.m. This year we hope to have the biggest year ever and we need your help. The walk, organized and coordinated by the Embarcadero Lions Club and supported by regional Lions Clubs and the State Lions Organization is held in honor of ‘Bob’ Smith, with all proceeds donated to support the efforts of the Parkinson Association of Northern California (PANC). This event has raised $81,570 for PANC in the past three years. In essence...every dime we help the Lions raise means funding comes back to PANC for: new support groups, additional ParkinsonWISE Programs, enhanced Information and Referral services, an amazing, low cost Annual Conference, additional Respite Care and more. Given their dedication to the Parkinson Community, we believe the Embarcadero Lions Club deserves all the support we can muster.

How can you help?

• Make a donation and attend the event: Cheer our supporters on, participate in the health fair, visit our wonderful sponsors, enjoy the entertainment, eat a free lunch, all in a beautiful park setting with easy parking!

• Gather a walk team: encourage your support group to join together, gather their friends/families to generate a group of supporters to walk as a team. And then enjoy the festivities.
